DISCOVER VIROC FORMWORK - FORMWORK REINVENTED

What if formwork didn't have to be removed—and became an integral part of the final aesthetic? With Viroc, it's possible. A solution increasingly popular with architects seeking functionality, aesthetics, and durability. Viroc is a highly resistant and durable cement-wood panel, perfect for structural applications with a strong visual presence. Permanent formwork is a system where the panels used to pour the concrete remain integrated into the structure. With Viroc, this process becomes even more attractive: the material remains visible, revealing its natural texture and architectural character. Click to learn more.
